Experience. The Difference.

For more than 85 years, SLACK Incorporated has been a leading provider of information, educational programs, and meetings to physicians, allied healthcare professionals, and nurses. In addition to book publishing, SLACK Incorporated publishes 42 journals and newspapers in print and online, operates more than 50 Websites and Internet-related projects, directs meetings and exhibits around the world, and produces custom newspapers and meeting supplements for a growing number of healthcare conventions and meetings.

Through this vast experience, SLACK has built long-standing relationships with many of the world's foremost leaders in healthcare, keeping us current with the latest information, trends, and technology in medicine. In turn, your book published by SLACK Incorporated will receive instant recognition by the thousands of healthcare professionals who have come to know and trust the educational materials produced by our company.

Undivided Attention, Unmatched Quality

While we have extensive publishing experience and a solid corporate foundation, we take a personal approach with each and every author who chooses to publish with us. From concept through completion, we will work closely with you to develop a high-quality educational publication designed to communicate the informational needs of the healthcare professionals you want to reach.

In addition to the personal attention you will receive, our veteran publishing staff has enabled SLACK to create one of the most efficient and expedited publishing processes in the industry, while delivering the highest level quality and service. Every publication has an individualized production schedule and marketing plan so you'll always know the progress being made.
